A close-up photograph of a wood-grain laminate surface, likely a cabinet door or drawer front. The laminate has a vertical grain pattern with varying shades of brown. A white, rectangular label with rounded corners is affixed to the lower right portion of the surface. The label contains the text 'R 102' in a bold, black, sans-serif font. The edges of the laminate are rounded. On the far left, a sliver of a different material with a light-colored, floral pattern is visible. On the far right, a white vertical edge, possibly a hinge or part of the cabinet frame, is partially visible.

A close-up photograph of a wooden surface, likely a table or desk, showing a vertical wood grain. The wood is a warm, medium-brown color with some darker, wavy patterns. A white, rectangular label with rounded corners is affixed to the center of the wood. The label contains the text 'R112' in a bold, black, sans-serif font. The background is slightly out of focus, showing a light-colored floor and a black office chair with a white circular backrest on the right side.
